

*So then, as we have opportunity,
let us do good to everyone...*

*...and especially to those who are of the household of faith.

...teach a man to fish...

The mission of the Athanatos Foundation is to focus the generosity of individuals, organizations, and companies, towards direct assistance of needful individuals and worthy causes, rather than delegating these responsibilities to governmental agencies, which are not likely to exhibit the same values, principles, and priorities, shared by contributors to the foundation.

The Athanatos Foundation is a continuation of the activities of its founder, Dr. Anthony Horvath, which were first officially organized into a Christian non-profit in 2008. The now dissolved Athanatos Christian Ministries engaged in educational activities related to providing evidence that Christianity was not merely a 'religion,' but was, in actuality, true. There was an emphasis on presenting this evidence through the arts, and, in particular, through literature. This emphasis eventually led to a re-organization, which resulted in the formation of the Athanatos Publishing Group, Inc., which formally embodies the emphasis on literature.

What does 'Athanatos' mean?

It is a Greek word, which literally means something like, "No Death" or "Never dying" but can be translated as "Immortal," or perhaps, "Eternity" or "Eternal Life."

The choice of this word to be the flag for Dr. Horvath's activities reflects the 'motto' of ACM and APG, which is inspired by a portion of Ecclesiastes 3:11: "He Has Set Eternity In the Hearts of Men."

In short, the word "Athanatos" is a daily reminder that all of humanity is created in the image of God, and because of this, no matter the hardness of their hearts or the difficulty in reaching them, people are made to desire God.

About the Founder

The Athanatos Foundation was founded by Dr. Anthony Horvath.

Dr. Horvath has been married for 25+ years and the father of four. A researcher, author, and publisher, it has been his enduring goal to take concrete actions. He is not content to talk endlessly about a worthy endeavor, but then never actually do it. He believes: if its worthy... do it.

On a personal level, Dr. Horvath is keen to become self-sufficient, and as such has added produce farming to his list of activities. In light of the current economic environment, and the impending economic catastrophe he perceives is inbound, Dr. Horvath has turned his eyes on providing food security for as many as he can, starting, of course, with his own family and the 'household of faith.'

More broadly, he endorses the spirit behind the maxim, "Give a man a fish, and you feed him for a day. Teach a man to fish, and you feed him for the rest of his life." The Athanatos Foundation will, without doubt, lend direct aid "for a day" when it seems necessary and appropriate. However, it will lean towards equipping people "for the rest of their lives" in its programs and initiatives as much as possible.

If that is a philosophy that you want to animate your philanthropy, Dr. Horvath encourages you to join him in his activities through

THE ATHANATOS FOUNDATION.

Athanatos Foundation Initiatives

The Athanatos Foundation is newly launched as of 2022. As such, all projects are in their infancy. Indeed, some are as yet only like a twinkle in the founder's eye.

An initiative which is under active development, however, is the Gleanings Project.

In due time, a program to more directly assist in disaster relief will be developed and implemented. A scholarship program is in the works. An application process for individuals needing direct assistance will be established. Other projects the foundation might initiate include a small business incubator, construction of a 'commercial kitchen' for community use.

For now, whet your appetite by learning more about the Gleanings Project.

The Gleanings Project

Food Security for All

In accord with the mission of the Athanatos Foundation and its goal to not merely dispense charity, but equip people to obtain higher levels of self-sufficiency, the foundation's "Gleanings Project" has multiple components, designed to meet people in the various economic situations they may be in.

1. Support for Women and Families in Crisis – In Cooperation with Crisis Pregnancy Centers.

Reflecting the founder's passion for promoting pro-life principles and values, The Athanatos Foundation will directly donate fresh produce to desiring crisis pregnancy centers on a regular basis. In addition, it will educate families on how to prepare the food and otherwise make healthy food choices (such as the dangers of certain processed foods).

2. Direct donation of food (more broadly)

In association with Wisconsin-based Dynamite Harvest, LLC, the produce farm established by Dr. Horvath, The Athanatos Foundation will donate naturally grown produce to families that need it, potentially directly, although initially this might primarily be through donations to food banks, and so on.

3. Home Gardens For All

Also in association with Dynamite Harvest, LLC, the Athanatos Foundation will finance research into developing growing plots that can be established in small backyards, patios, and so on. The results of this research will be used to formulate various seed packages, accompanied by educational materials, that are then distributed to individuals and families, subsidized by the Athanatos Foundation and its donors.

The goal of our research is simple: to take the smallest space possible and produce the greatest yield possible of healthy food by people who are not expected to be competent gardeners.

4. Produce Care Packages

In one of those great ironies, unhealthy food is much more affordable than healthy food. That means the people who need quality nutrition the most cannot afford it. Instead, they end up buying a lot of heavily processed foods that are loaded with high fructose corn syrup and other additives that are not, strictly speaking, food. Fresh produce is expensive, relatively speaking. One idea for bridging this gap is to develop a program through which interested parties can ship fresh produce to worthy individuals and families that otherwise couldn't afford it.

Conclusion

The Athanatos Foundation embodies the philanthropic desires of its founder, Dr. Anthony Horvath. In its inaugural year, it expects to actively pursue several worthy projects which, God-willing, will become sustained efforts that endure indefinitely.

As a 501c3 tax-exempt organization, the foundation is equipped to invite others to join it in its vision, and offer to contributors the financial advantages that tax-exempt entities can provide. Bottom line: If you believe that individuals can take care of their own families and communities better than governments and their sprawling agencies can, then your values might align with those of The Athanatos Foundation.

You are hereby invited to join the Athanatos Foundation with your time, talent, and treasure, in its quest to live out the truth that we are all, in reality, athanatos.
